Officers of the newly-organized Retail Merchants' association were elected Tuesday evening at a meeting of 30 merchants held in the Pickaway Country Club.

They are Nathan Groban, president; George Griffith, vice president; and Karl Mason, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors is comprised of Irvin Kinsey, W. Joe Burns, Ben Gordon, Charles Fellers and Clarence Wolfe.

Officers and directors will confer soon to establish policies for the organization, draw up by-laws and prepare reports to be submitted at the next regular meeting.

Barton Holl, secretary of the Logan Chamber of Commerce, outlined the work of the Logan Retail Merchants' association, and urged local business men to band together in a "business partnership." Mr. Holl estimated the Logan association has saved business men $5,000 a year through preventing them from being the victims of various types of advertising schemes.

Committee Functions

The association has a secret committee for the investigation of these schemes. The Logan association conducts a credit bureau and membership fees depend largely on the number of credit reports required by a business firm. After the meeting Mr. Holl met with the newly-named officers to assist them in working out further plans for the organization.

The Seattle playboy climbed aboard a Northwest Airlines transport in Chicago last night, grinning. The plane rolled down the runway to a dark corner of the field and stopped. Zioncheck was removed and told there was no room for him—alone.

"It was the most absurd and ridiculous and outrageous thing I ever heard of," he exploded. "If the government ever did a thing like that everyone would be up in arms."

He suggested "maybe Jim Farley ordered the airline to do this."

Police Believe Boy May Solve Mother's Murder

Former inmates of Colorado State Prison Sought for Grilling in Death of Night Club Hostess

CHICAGO, July 1.—(UP)—Two characters from a hidden chapter in the life of pretty Mrs. Florence Castle were wanted by police today in their hunt for the person who crushed her skull while she slept beside her seven year old son.

The wanted men were both former inmates of the Colorado state prison at Canon City where Mrs. Castle's "forgotten" husband—her third—is serving time. Both visited her in Chicago during the winter, soon after their release. Police wondered if they hadn't carried messages to Mrs. Castle from her incarcerated husband and also investigated reports that he had been convicted on evidence supplied by Mrs. Castle.

The new lead was the strongest as all other clues had been found to lead nowhere. Police leaned heavily on the stories told by her precocious child, who, though his own imaginings entered into his varied eye-witness versions, was one of their strongest hopes of solving the mystery.

Schaps Proves Alibi

Sidney Schaps, curly-headed night club entertainer who admitted visiting Mrs. Castle the night of her death, was freed last night on the strength of an alibi supplied by Mrs. Castle.

STEEL INDUSTRY NEARING CRISIS IN UNION DRIVE

Federal Officials Say They Are Helpless; McGrady Watching Situation

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(UP)—While federal officials admitted helplessness to avert "serious trouble" in the steel industry, labor leaders today discussed spread of an organization drive to the rubber and textile industries.

Labor organizers pushing into steel mill towns in half a dozen states reported hostilities already had begun with dismissal by steel companies of employees suspected of giving aid to committees of industrial organization agents.

They accused mill owners of initiating a campaign of guerrilla warfare. Despite labor leaders' avowal of an intended "bloodless" drive to organize the nation's 500,000 steel workers, they said they were "ready for whatever comes."

Department of labor officials frankly regard the situation as serious. They said reports from field workers of the department indicated the steel industry may become the battleground of one of the most stubborn labor-employer wars in many years.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, is devoting almost his entire attention to the situation. Daily reports from scores of his assistants are placed on his desk.

Labor department officials, admitting their hands have been tied by the open declarations of war by labor and steel leaders, hoped to prevent a spread of the threatened strike to other industries.

Threshing to Be at Peak Within Week; Heffner Chairman of Meeting

Two hundred grain dealers from Pickaway and surrounding counties heard glowing reports of the crop outlook, Tuesday, when they gathered at the Pickaway Country Club for their annual get-together.

From all indications, the grain dealers were told, the wheat crop will be excellent in quality, though not so great in volume, due largely to the extreme dry weather of the early summer.

Wheat has already started to move into Circleville's markets. Within the next week threshing will be on at full steam. The price offered this week is ranging from 85 to 90 cents a bushel. The market was reported strong Wednesday.

Crittenden Speaker

K. S. Crittenden, option specialist for the Weathermen Co., Cincinnati, was the principal speaker at Tuesday's meeting. He explained conditions, hedging, and other practices familiar to grain men. Several others spoke during the meeting held in "The Barn" at the club. The meeting followed an afternoon spent in golf and social activities.

Harry W. Heffner of the Heffner Grain Co. acted as chairman of the evening meeting. No particular organization is in charge of the annual affair, all companies and their friends being invited to discuss the outlook for markets, and to enjoy the day socially.

Representatives of all eastern markets, including Buffalo, Toledo, Baltimore, and Cincinnati, were present.

Many of the visiting grain men said the meeting was larger than that of the Ohio Graindealers association held this year.

Rain Brings Relief

A general rain fell over Pickaway county Tuesday to bring relief to burned-up pasture fields, and to aid crops in their development. The rainfall was not heavy, but provided some relief from the drought which has swept the midwest, and included Pickaway county in its scope. Dr. H. R. Clarke's government gauge recorded only .06 of an inch in Circleville, but much of the Circleville trading area was blessed with a great deal more rain than that.

The forecast does not predict more rain in the next day or two.

The fire had gained such headway before the department arrived it was impossible to save it.

A Ford car and a load of hay in the building were completely destroyed.

SLIDING VEHICLE STOPS ON RIM OF GREAT PRECIPICE

Signpost Describing Natural Bridge Prevents Great Tragedy During Storm

TRAVELING TO CAPITAL

Driver One of Victims; Several Others Not Identified After Crash

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va., July 1.—(UP)—A Greyhound bus, carrying 33 passengers through a wild rain-storm across historic Natural Bridge, skidded and overturned today a few feet from the brink of a sheer precipice 212 feet high.

Of the 33 people were killed. All of the 28 others were injured, some of them so seriously that they may die.

Only a sign post advertising the wonders of Natural Bridge saved the big bus and its human cargo from catastrophe over that same bridge at its highest point.

The bus started last night from Roanoke, Va., bound for Washington, D. C., with Driver J. J. O'Leary at the wheel. As the bus progressed storm clouds gathered almost as if portending what was to come.

Highway Shippers

As O'Leary neared the top of the bridge he had to make a left turn to swing onto the bridge proper. Ahead the curve was sharp. Under the wheels the asphalt was washed slippery as glass by the downpour of rain.

The bus speed moderated as it swung into the turn by the great bulk of the machine provided an inertia that was irresistible on the wet pavement. It began to skid.

First O'Leary swung into a wall as the left hand side of the road, apparently ready to make any sacrifice to slacken his speed enough so that he could come to a stop before he reached the natural span and its precipitous drop.

The bus grated against the wall and then careened back to the other side of the road. O'Leary fighting the wheel and the passengers now awake and screaming. Entirely out of control and moving with all the momentum of its great bulk the bus hit the ditch at the roadside and whipped up on its right side, then over on its top.

Glass shattered and became as deadly as so many steel swords.

Pinned in Seats

The top of the bus crumpled, caught passengers and pinned them in their seats.

With the weight of the bus on them most of those inside were unable to move. Human bones were snapped like matchwood.

The crash of the bus was heard over the sound of the storm in the Continued on Page Eight

FIRE DESTROYS JENNINGS' BARN

Lightning Bolt Strikes Property at Atlanta

Fire, caused by lightning, destroyed a barn Tuesday evening owned by V. L. Jennings, Atlanta, at a loss estimated at $1,000.

The barn was struck about 7:30 p. m. while Mr. and Mrs. Jennings were attending a church meeting. The blaze was discovered by Everett Stevenson, a neighbor, and the Williamsport volunteer fire department was called. The fire had gained such headway before the department arrived it was impossible to save it.

A Ford car and a load of hay in the building were completely destroyed.

SLIDING VEHICLE STOPS ON RIM OF GREAT PRECIPICE

Signpost Describing Natural Bridge Prevents Great Tragedy During Storm

TRAVELING TO CAPITAL

Driver One of Victims; Several Others Not Identified After Crash

NATURAL BRIDGE, Va., July 1.—(UP)—A Greyhound bus, carrying 33 passengers through a wild rain-storm across historic Natural Bridge, skidded and overturned today a few feet from the brink of a sheer precipice 212 feet high.

Of the 33 people were killed. All of the 28 others were injured, some of them so seriously that they may die.

Only a sign post advertising the wonders of Natural Bridge saved the big bus and its human cargo from catapulting over that same bridge at its highest point.

The bus started last night from Roanoke, Va., bound for Washington, D. C., with Driver J. J. Olderson at the wheel. As the bus progressed storm clouds gathered almost as if portending what was to come.

Highway Slippery

As Olderson neared the top of the bridge he had to make a left turn to swing onto the bridge proper. Ahead the curve was sharp. Under the wheels the asphalt was washed slippery as glass by the downpour of rain.

The bus speed moderated as it swung into the turn by the great bulk of the machine provided an inertia that was irresistible on the wet pavement. It began to skid.

"First Olderson swung into a wall as the left hand side of the road, apparently ready to make any sacrifice to slacken his speed enough so that he could come to a stop before he reached the natural span and its precipitous drop.

The bus grated against the wall and then careened back to the other side of the road, Olderson fighting the wheel and the passengers now awake and screaming.

Entirely out of control and moving with all the momentum of its great bulk the bus hit the ditch at the roadside and whipped up on its right side, then over on its top.

Glass shattered and became as deadly as so many steel swords.

Pinned in Seats

The top of the bus crumpled, caught passengers and pinned them in their seats.

With the weight of the bus on them most of those inside were unable to move. Human bones were snapped like matchwood.

The crash of the bus was heard over the sound of the storm in the

COUNTRY HOME THREATENED BY FIRE IN FIELD

15 Shocks of Wheat Lost in Flames; Morris Residence Guarded

A cigarette or cigar carelessly thrown in the dry grass along Route 23, just north of the Circleville corporation limits, caused a fire Tuesday afternoon that destroyed 15 shocks of wheat and threatened the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Morris.

Mrs. Morris was notified of the fire about 2 p. m. by W. R. Cummings, Ashville. The Circleville fire department was called.

The high wind carried the fire directly toward the home. A crew of state highway workers joined firemen.

After the fire was extinguished the workers stationed pails of water along the road as an emergency measure.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris asked The Herald to express their appreciation to the Circleville firemen and highway employees for their efficient work.

Mr. Morris was unable to estimate his loss.

Aged Defendant

PAYING little attention to the proceedings, Peter Voiss, aged prospector, is pictured in court at San Jose, Cal., where he is on trial charged with the slaying of Dr. Jasper Gattuccio. Voiss allegedly shot and killed Dr. Gattuccio when the latter attempted to take a picture of him.

SEWAGE PLANT HOPE INCREASES

Waring Tells Fairfield Men Money is Available

COLUMBUS, July 1.—(UP)—Enough money is available to finance construction of a sewage disposal plant in Lancaster, Fred H. Waring, chief engineer of the state health department, informed a delegation of Fairfield county residents Tuesday.

The money could be obtained from the public works administration.

However, the city's share of the expense would be $210,000, and officials would have to prove to the government that they could take care of that amount.

He urged that a special election be called to vote on bonds for the project.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Airplane pilots may not be the most superstitious group of people in the universe, but they're certainly a close runner-up. Directors Eric Kenton, who made "Devil's Squadron," the swift-moving Columbia story of airplane test pilots, showing last times today at the Cliftona theatre, discovered this fact while he was directing a group of intrepid airmen in the air sequences of the film, which stars Richard Dix with Karen Morley and Lloyd Nolan playing featured roles.

"First among the superstitions of the airmen is their refusal to shake anyone's hand before they leave land," Kenton said. "Just try and shake hands with a pilot just before he takes his ship off and see what happens!" the director added.

AT THE GRAND

The co-starring of James Stewart with Margaret Sullivan in "Next Time We Love" meant the realization of an ambition for Stewart. When a student at Princeton, he saw Miss Sullivan, then getting started on her theatrical career, in "Strictly Dishonorable." Promptly he sought ways of meeting her, but was unsuccessful at the time.

When the Princetonian's own success brought him the offer from Universal to be Margaret Sullivan's leading man, it meant the greatest opportunity of his film career, as well as a chance to meet at last the girl he had long admired.

PREMIER OF FRANCE WARNS OF EUROPEAN DANGER

BLUM DECLARES SITUATION LIKE CRISIS IN 1914

League Hears Talk That Organization Failed in Italo-Ethiopian War

GENEVA, July 1.—(UP)—Confronting the League of Nations failure in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis, Premier Leon Blum of France, in his maiden speech at Geneva, said today that Europe had returned to a situation equivalent to that prevailing in 1914.

Blum begged that the league simultaneously reinforce collective security and promote disarmament.

He lifted the assembly from Ethiopia's plight to consideration of the world situation as a whole and thundered for France that she would not remain passive if her soil or the soil of her allies were invaded.

Blum was followed to the rostrum by Galileo Solis of Panama who urged a world conference to consider formation of a new league on the grounds that the present organization is not satisfactory and is faced with the wholesale withdrawal of American nations.

But it was Blum's vigorous speech which astonished the world statesmen.

He decried the increasing race for armaments and referring, evidently to Germany, said:

"The mystery certain nations maintain regarding their armaments adds to the universal dread of war. War is almost inevitable the moment it is considered inevitable. The friends of collective security should bar the route to those who are shaking the dice of war."

Blum did not mention sanctions but the bloc of neutral nations, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Denmark, issued a communique asserting they reserved the right not to apply sanctions in future disputes until the world has been disarmed.

Library Notes

YOUTH'S CAPTAIN

Biography ranks next to fiction in library popularity. For older boys and girls and for adult readers wishing a short interesting biography, Hildegarde Hawthorne has written "Youth's Captain," the story of Ralph Waldo Emerson. "The Ohio Pupils' Reading Circle" lists this book for High School students, in its recommendation for 1936-1937.

"Less than four and a quarter centuries ago no map of the world included the American continents."—"The Romance of the American Map" is a popular account of American exploration, with interesting illustrations based on old maps, for either adult or juvenile reading.

Recommended to High School students by the "Ohio Pupils' Reading Circle." The 1936-1937 reading circle books may be borrowed from the Public Library.

A millionaire who had traveled all over the world, and who had everything that money could purchase, sadly remarked: "I wish I could lie down under a tree." Poor chap!

HUNN INVESTS IN NEW PLANT

Meat Dealer Takes Over Edinger Packing Firm

Charles Hunn, Circleville and Chillicothe meat dealer, has purchased the Edinger Packing Co., Eleventh street, Chillicothe, from Mrs. Margaret Clark, who recently bought it at sheriff's sale.

Hunn announced he will completely remodel the plant into one of the most modern equipped packing houses in southern Ohio. He will move out of the packing house and cold storage plant he has been occupying on Eleventh street at the end of Mulberry street, which quarters have been inadequate due to the rapid growth of his business.

At the remodelled plant Hunn will have facilities for storage of at least 100 head of cattle.

Engineers from the York Co., Columbus office, a refrigerating equipment firm, were at the property today with Hunn getting data necessary for the installation of a new refrigerating system.

wood and bark soft so that inner growth is promoted so the foliage becomes more dense, and varieties subject to red spider if treated to an occasional bath of this kind will not be severely damaged by this pest.

After a drought such as we are experiencing, the summer showers do not wet the soil down far enough to benefit evergreens. There is only one proper way to water evergreens and a few gallons of water will not suffice. Use the hose without a nozzle and let it trickle at the base of the tree for several hours or a half a day if the tree is large. In this manner the water sinks in while bucketsfull if poured around the tree run away over the surface and do more harm than good. Deep watering encourages the roots to go deep while surface watering encourages surface rooting which causes the tree to suffer acutely at every dry spell and causes severe winter damage.

If you want nice evergreens it is essential that they get some care. The conditions around your home are quite different from that where the trees grow naturally and they need more attention than Nature gives them when they get reflected heat from your house and lack of moisture due to overhanging eaves and instead of fresh air they have to breathe the air that is filled with smoke and gasses from automobile exhausts.

PREMIER OF FRANCE WARNS OF EUROPEAN DANGERS

BLUM DECLARES SITUATION LIKE CRISIS IN 1914

League Hears Talk That Organization Failed in Italo-Ethiopian War

GENEVA, July 1.—(UP)—Confessing the League of Nations failure in the Italo-Ethiopia crisis Premier Leon Blum of France, in his maiden speech at Geneva, said today that Europe had returned to a situation equivalent to that prevailing in 1914.

Blum begged that the league simultaneously reenforce collective security and promote disarmament.

He lifted the assembly from Ethiopia's plight to consideration of the world situation as a whole and thundered for France that she would not remain passive if her soil or the soil of her allies were invaded.

Blum was followed to the rostrum by Galileo Solis of Panama who urged a world conference to consider formation of a new league on the grounds that the present organization is not satisfactory and is faced with the wholesale withdrawal of American nations.

But it was Blum's vigorous speech which astonished the world statesmen.

He decried the increasing race for armaments and referring, evidently to Germany, said:

"The mystery certain nations maintain regarding their armaments adds to the universal bread of war. War is almost inevitable the moment it is considered inevitable. The friends of collective security should bar the route to those who are shaking the dice of war."

Blum did not mention sanctions but the bloc of neutral nations, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Denmark, issued a communique asserting they reserved the right not to apply sanctions in future disputes until the world has been disarmed.

Library Notes

YOUTH'S CAPTAIN
Biography ranks next to fiction in library popularity. For older boys and girls and for adult readers wishing a short interesting biography, Hildegarde Hawthorne has written "Youth's Captain," the story of Ralph Waldo Emerson. "The Ohio Pupils' Reading Circle" lists this book for High School students, in its recommendation for 1936-1937.

"Less than four and a quarter centuries ago no map of the world included the American continents."—"The Romance of the American Map" is a popular account of American exploration, with interesting illustrations based on old maps, for either adult or juvenile reading.

Recommended to High School students by the "Ohio Pupils' Reading Circle." The 1936-1937 reading circle books may be borrowed from the Public Library.

A millionaire who had traveled all over the world, and who had everything that money could purchase, sadly remarked: "I wish I could lie down under a tree." Poor chap!

YOUNTSVILLE, Cal. (UP)—The state has installed six new incubators to supply the sportsman's demand for game birds. They turn out pheasants and partridges as fast as mother birds can lay eggs. The present output is 600 a day.

HUNN INVESTS IN NEW PLANT

Meat Dealer Takes Over Edinger Packing Firm

Charles Hunn, Circleville and Chillicothe meat dealer, has purchased the Edinger Packing Co., Eleventh street, Chillicothe, from Mrs. Margaret Clark, who recently bought it at sheriff's sale.

Hunn announced he will completely remodel the plant into one of the most modern equipped packing houses in southern Ohio. He will move out of the packing house and cold storage plant he has been occupying on Eleventh street at the end of Mulberry street, which quarters have been inadequate due to the rapid growth of his business.

At the remodelled plant Hunn will have facilities for storage of at least 100 head of cattle.

Engineers from the York Co., Columbus office, a refrigerating equipment firm, were at the property today with Hunn getting data necessary for the installation of a new refrigerating system.

HOT WEATHER CARE OF EVERGREEN TREES

Frequent "shower baths" are very beneficial to evergreens during the hot weather. Use a spray nozzle on the hose and turn it on the evergreens full force. It washes away the dust, keeps the wood and bark soft so that inner growth is promoted so the foliage becomes more dense, and varieties subject to red spider if treated to an occasional bath of this kind will not be severely damaged by this pest.

After a drought such as we are experiencing, the summer showers do not wet the soil down far enough to benefit evergreens. There is only one proper way to water evergreens and a few gallons of water will not suffice. Use the hose without a nozzle and let it trickle at the base of the tree for several hours or a half a day if the tree is large. In this manner the water sinks in while bucketsfull if poured around the tree run away over the surface and do more harm than good. Deep watering encourages the roots to go deep while surface watering encourages surface rooting which causes the tree to suffer acutely at every dry spell and causes severe winter damage.

If you want nice evergreens it is essential that they get some care. The conditions around your home are quite different from that where the trees grow naturally and they need more attention than Nature gives them when they get reflected heat from your house and lack of moisture due to overhanging eaves and instead of fresh air they have to breathe the air that is filled with smoke and gasses from automobile exhausts.

THE WATER PRESSURE

THE Ohio Water Service Co., in whose hands the fate of so many Circleville property hangs, should be especially diligent during this extreme heat and drought to maintain a water pressure sufficient at all times to assure safety.

In one Circleville factory, Tuesday, fear prevailed when the pressure recorder showed a fall from 60 to 35 from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. This drop seems enormous despite the great amount of water being used.

In the interest of every Circleville man, woman and child, we urge the water company to maintain the most consistent pressure possible.

SOY BEANS AND THE NATION

UNTIL now the average citizen, busy with many matters, has had little opportunity to gain first-hand and thoroughly reliable information concerning the infinite uses of the soy bean. To the Consumers' Guide, published by the A. A. A., we are indebted for new light on the wonders of the bean and the importance of its place in the scheme of things.

"From the seed comes meal and oil," says the Guide. "Out of the meal can be made flour for use in infant goods, macaroni, breakfast foods, bread and cakes. Soy bean oil meal provides feeds and fertilizer for farm use. Out of the oil can be made soap, enamels, varnishes, paints, salad oils, cooking fats, linoleum, printing inks and lubricating oils.

"Celluloid, and even glycerine, can be made from soy bean oil. From the dried beans come soy sauce, soaps, sprouts, roasted beans, a vegetable milk in liquid, powdered or curd form. From soy bean meal come glue, paper sizing and plastics. One important automobile firm has made notable experiments with plastics."

These revelations give us new hope and confidence. When one little bean, never rated high among our national resources, possesses such innumerable possibilities of sustenance, surely the nation cannot fail.

COHAN'S MEDAL

A GRATEFUL Congress, pausing in the midst of important work, authorized the President to present a gold medal to George M. Cohan in recognition of his services during the World War. It was Cohan who composed the war-time song "Over There."

The martial spirit of this composition cannot be denied. It helped to lure more than one young man from his occupational peacetime pursuits to a conflict that was to be for them the most tremendous moment of their lives. And some of them were never to hear again the strains of this song. That, of course, is patriotism, but viewing it in the cold light of a dispassionate aftermath, there is no room in our national makeup for scenes of such hysteria.

SECURITIES ACT INVOLVED

WASHINGTON — While the President was sounding the battle-cry against "economic royalists" at Philadelphia, practically no one noticed a case acted upon by the Securities-Exchange Commission which indicates that the battle — as far as Wall Street is concerned — is already in full swing.

The case is that of Boston-Montana Mines, and threatens to result in a Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of the Securities Act.

The issue is whether a firm, wishing to sell stocks and bonds to the public, can register with the SEC, and then having registered, withdraw its case after the SEC discovers grounds for charging fraud.

This goes one step further than the J. Edward Jones test, in which the Supreme Court decided against the SEC. Jones wanted to withdraw his registration before he had sold stock to the public.

But in the Boston-Montana Mines case, stocks actually had been sold before the SEC found an alleged falsification and issued a stop order against further sales. The SEC has now threatened to turn the case over to the Justice Department, while Boston-Montana Mines threatens to take it up to the Supreme Court.

The case is the most important one involving the SEC that has come up so far. For if a firm can register a statement and then, when challenged withdraw without fear of prosecution, then registering will become just a good natured game of tag.

THREE LIBERALS

The three liberal members of the court all are relaxing at their country homes in the same general area. Justice Brandeis is on his farm at Chatham, Mass., where he has summered for years. Further north, off the Maine coast, is Justice Stone's summer place on the Isle au Haut, where Stone delights in putting around the house, mowing the lawn and doing odd jobs. Mrs. Stone spends most of the summer painting.

Justice Cardozo has a summer place at Rye, N. Y., within commuting distance of the pavements of New York which he loves, and for which he is actually homesick when he is too far away.

Justice Roberts was nearest to the Philadelphia Convention and the denunciation which the Court received at the hands of Democratic orators. He owns a farm at Valley Forge—in fact, six small farms which he has merged—although he leases it to a farming corporation, and gets a great kick out of being around to do odd jobs himself.

Justice Van Devanter also is spending the summer on a farm, that of his son in nearby Maryland. Justice Butler is at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., a mountain resort only two hours drive from Washington, where the Japanese Ambassador and various diplomats usually spend their summers. Butler is an inveterate golfer.

into that conflict is something which a great many of us would like to forget, but at least it had this rather mournful benefit: We will not go to bat for other nations in a vast hurry again.

Europe's military cliques having quieted down, Japan takes another poke at China. If this were not done, some simple-minded person might resume thinking that war as an instrument of national policy has been outlawed.

CHAPTER 33

THERE MUST be something that Joan Spencer could do about it if Julian really had fallen in love with Sheila too late. Joan Spencer had a lot of wild ideas at that moment as she left Sheila and Julian alone in Julian's library.

If it were really true, as Donald said, that any man would be blind not to fall in love with her—Joan—she might set out to be her most alluring self to be Pierre Durand's next big attraction. That, of course, was the wildest idea. How could a girl like Joan—plain girl that she considered herself—hope to be a rival to the glamorous Sheila? Joan was all too ready to withdraw from any field in which she found herself with the famous actress.

But there was Sheila herself. Joan had believed that Sheila wanted to be friends with her. Why couldn't she go to Sheila and tell her that Julian loved her? But Sheila must have known that all these years and had she wanted Julian, she could have had him long ago. Joan had never spoken of his love, although his every gesture was eloquent of it. Perhaps if Joan were to talk to her and plead for him, Sheila would see it differently. Joan wondered if Julian had ever talked to Sheila of cool forests and mountained herself a fool for thinking that she might open blind eyes to such beauty, that she might so inartificially present a thing that Julian himself had not been able to do.

That Sheila was not worthy of all that Julian had to offer, she did not doubt, but if Julian wanted her, if he were to go through life alone because of her, Joan wanted him to have her.

Sheila was at the height of her glory and fame today but an actress' years were limited and when they were over what other than love could fill the enlarged circle of her life?

Even if she did not love Julian as he loved her, she would have the protection of his love, the life-long adulation he would always give her. She would never have to know the emptiness of the anti-climatic years when the theater was not for her. In Julian's eyes she would always have glamor.

Joan, thinking these things, was close to something that was nearly the truth. That was Sheila's need of Julian.

Her meditation came to an abrupt end. "Whew! I think I need a scotch and soda." It was Julian.

"Housekeeper, secretary, barmaid."

We aim to please," Joan announced, pouring a drink for Julian.

"Thank the gods that you aren't a temperamental woman," he said accepting it gratefully. "Joan, you have no idea how completely satisfactory you are. You are the balance wheel I've needed all my life."

How happy he looked. Perhaps Sheila and he had just been staging the big reconciliation scene. "For 15 years I've been drying Sheila's tears and still I can't seem to learn that the next time is never any different. Poor child, she takes everything much too hard."

Joan had her doubts about Sheila's being a "poor child" but she kept them to herself.

"I'm relieved to hear there wasn't something serious the matter," she seemed safe enough to say.

"It was serious enough. I had wanted Georgia Carley to play Helena. Fortunately, she has been undecided about it. That gives me an out. Sheila wants to play the role. And Sheila is quite right about it. We have the biggest thing I've ever done. When it is over, I shall settle down to writing books and leave this as my last play."

"Not!" Joan said to him at once. "You can't stop. You're just beginning. You're young. You have a lifetime of work and..."

"Yes, now that Sheila has calmed down, I shall settle down to writing books and leave this as my last play."

think she'll make a wonderful Helena."

"If she had something you've got, Joan, she'd be perfect." Julian didn't tell her what she had but Joan glowed within. She was embarrassed and picked up her papers without saying anything in answer.

Joan had always done that. Changing the subject, slipping away at crucial moments, evading answers, dropping a curtain before the issues of the moment, lacking courage to face them, and see them through had answered her destiny and would do it again, but Joan didn't know that.

It wasn't that Joan lacked honesty or the courage to face things by herself; it was that she feared to assume things that she thought were of her own imagination and not of circumstance. She didn't realize the reaction it provoked in others.

Extreme reserve is oft-times as unfortunate as extreme impulsiveness.

Sheila burst in on Joan a few days later.

"Joan, dear, you're much closer to all this than I am. I've read the play but I wish you'd tell me more about it. You've been working on it and I'm sure it must be quite real to you. Now, did you feel that Helena..."

Sheila could certainly be charming. This was not the imperious girl who had insulted Joan at The Willows. This was Sheila at her best, anxious, it was true, to glean everything she could from Joan for the betterment of her performance. Joan was surprised to find Sheila listening with respect to all that she had to tell her, surprised to find Sheila asking with real humility if Joan thought she had the right interpretations.

One night she telephoned and asked Joan to dine with her at her apartment. Joan accepted.

Sheila's apartment was exactly like Sheila. It was all in bright white and cool greens. There was much modern glass, white rugs, low chairs, dazzling prints. It was enchanting but wearing.

Joan said she liked it. Sheila said she thought it was "chic" and suited her.

"Will you live in New York when you are married?" Sheila shot at her out of a clear sky.

"I don't know that I'm going to be married," Joan said with a speck of doubt. "How did Sheila happen to say—and know—that?"

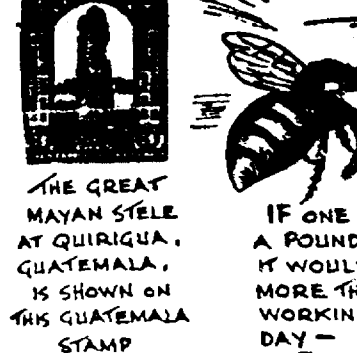

"Really?" Sheila looked up from her salad. "How odd! Julian said something about your getting married as soon as the play is on."

So Julian didn't anticipate her services in the play was on!

THE BIRTHDAY OF THE NATION

July 4, 1776

We celebrate the 160th anniversary of the birth of our Nation.

"Government of the people, by the people, and for the people," is not perfect. Men and women are not perfect. It is true, that in a Republic founded upon the principle of human equality, there are still grave inequalities to be overcome, great injustices to be corrected. But we Americans enjoy more freedom, more comforts and luxuries than are granted to any other people.

May this 160th birthday be an inspiration to new unity and devotion in working out our common problems.

World At A Glance

—By— Charles P. Stewart

Just as predicted the groups Congressman William Lemke was counting on to combine in support of his Union party presidential candidacy are failing to get together.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend already expresses doubts of his old age pensioners' liking for the Lemke movement. At first the doctor seemed rather friendly toward it. Now, however, he says that the old age pensioners won't make up their minds before their meeting in Cleveland, July 15-19. He suggests that they may prefer to name their own candidate, ignoring Lemke.

The trouble with these third party folk is that they don't agree among themselves. Instead of forming a third party, when it comes to a showdown their idea is to form several different and conflicting independent parties, thus offsetting one another.

REFERENCES

Perhaps, as Dr. Townsend foretells, the old age pensioners will make their own candidate. Perhaps, either way, it's clear from the doctor's comment that they're wildly enthusiastic for Lemke. Lemke makes his appeal especially to agriculture, by a method involving monetary inflation. On that basis one might suppose he could command the backing, for example, of Senator Elmer Thomas. Thomas is from Oklahoma, as agricultural a state as Lemke's North Dakota. He also is an inflationist. Nevertheless no Thomasonian cheers are heard for Lemke. Why? Why, Thomas knows that Lemke doesn't stand a Chinaman's chance. It pays him better to stay at least nominally Democratic.

Labor shows no signs of getting on board the Lemke hearse. It sizzles with third party sentiment, but not for Lemke's kind of a third party.

LONG FOLLOWERS

The Rev. Gerald I. K. Smith, who has assumed that he is the late Senator Huey P. Long's successor, appears mildly Lemke-ish but the machine Huey Long organized manifests a disposition to toss the Rev. Gerald I. K. overboard as its leader not caring to tie itself up with a losing venture.

Neither the Wisconsin Progressive nor the Minnesota Farmer-Laborites gravitate Lemke-ward. Father Charles E. Coughlin and

Senator Lynn J. Frazier are the only outstanding Lemke-ites. As for Senator Frazier, he was co-author, with Representative Lemke in basing his campaign. In such circumstances he hardly can be otherwise than pro-Lemke. Parenthetically it's noteworthy that Frazier's North Dakota colleague, Senator Gerald P. Nye, is noncommittal.

LEMKE'S HOPE

Congressman Lemke surmises that with his Union party in the field, no candidate will win an electoral majority-over-all and, consequently, that the presidential decision will be thrown into the house of representatives. It's the height of an improbability.

The same prediction was made in 1924, when the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, a far stronger candidate than than Congressman Lemke is at present, was a third party aspirant, and the senator carried only his own state of Wisconsin. A similar prediction was made when Theodore Roosevelt ran as a Bull Moose, and he couldn't do it.

Congressman Lemke flatters himself.

THE WATER PRESSURE

THE Ohio Water Service Co., in whose hands the fate of so many Circleville property hangs, should be especially diligent during this extreme heat and drought to maintain a water pressure sufficient at all times to assure safety.

In one Circleville factory, Tuesday, fear prevailed when the pressure recorder showed a fall from 60 to 35 from 8 a. m. to 1 p. m. This drop seems enormous despite the great amount of water being used.

In the interest of every Circleville man, woman and child, we urge the water company to maintain the most consistent pressure possible.

SOY BEANS AND THE NATION

UNTIL now the average citizen, busy with many matters, has had little opportunity to gain first-hand and thoroughly reliable information concerning the infinite uses of the soy bean. To the Consumers' Guide, published by the A. A. A., we are indebted for new light on the wonders of the bean and the importance of its place in the scheme of things.

"From the seed comes meal and oil," says the Guide. "Out of the meal can be made flour for use in infant foods, macaroni, breakfast foods, bread and cakes. Soy bean oil meal provides feeds and fertilizer for farm use. Out of the oil can be made soap, enamels, varnishes, paints, salad oils, cooking fats, linoleum, printing inks and lubricating oils.

"Celluloid, and even glycerine, can be made from soy bean oil. From the dried beans come soy sauce, soaps, sprouts, roasted beans, a vegetable milk in liquid, powdered or curd form. From soy bean meal come glue, paper sizing and plastics. One important automobile firm has made notable experiments with plastics."

These revelations give us new hope and confidence. When one little bean, never rated high among our national resources, possesses such innumerable possibilities of sustenance, surely the nation cannot fail.

COHAN'S MEDAL

A GRATEFUL Congress, pausing in the midst of important work, authorized the President to present a gold medal to George M. Cohan in recognition of his services during the World War. It was Cohan who composed the war-time song "Over There."

The martial spirit of this composition cannot be denied. It helped to lure more than one young man from his occupational peacetime pursuits to a conflict that was to be for them the most tremendous moment of their lives. And some of them were never to hear again the strains of this song. That, of course, is patriotism, but viewing it in the cold light of a dispassionate aftermath, there is no room in our national makeup for scenes of such hysteria.

SECURITIES ACT INVOLVED

WASHINGTON — While the President was sounding the battle-cry against "economic royalists" at Philadelphia, practically no one noticed a case acted upon by the Securities-Exchange Commission which indicates that the battle — as far as Wall Street is concerned — is already in full swing.

The case is that of Boston-Montana Mines, and threatens to result in a Supreme Court test of the constitutionality of the Securities Act.

The issue is whether a firm, wishing to sell stocks and bonds to the public, can register with the SEC, and then having registered, withdraw its case after the SEC discovers grounds for charging fraud.

This goes one step further than the J. Edward Jones test, in which the Supreme Court decided against the SEC. Jones wanted to withdraw his registration before he had sold stock to the public.

But in the Boston-Montana Mines case, stocks actually had been sold before the SEC found an alleged falsification and issued a stop order against further sales. The SEC has now threatened to turn the case over to the Justice Department, while Boston-Montana Mines threatens to take it up to the Supreme Court.

The case is the most important one involving the SEC that has come up so far. For if a firm can register a statement and then, when challenged withdraw without fear of prosecution, then registering will become just a good natured game of tag.

THREE LIBERALS

The three liberal members of the court all are relaxing at their country homes in the same general area. Justice Brandeis is on his farm at Chatham, Mass., where he has summered for years. Further north, off the Maine coast, is Justice Stone's summer place on the Isle au Haut, where Stone delights in putting around the house, mowing the lawn and doing odd jobs. Mrs. Stone spends most of the summer painting.

Justice Cardozo has a summer place at Rye, N. Y., within commuting distance of the pavements of New York which he loves, and for which he is actually homesick when he is too far away.

Justice Roberts was nearest to the Philadelphia Convention and the denunciation which the Court received at the hands of Democratic orators. He owns a farm at Valley Forge—in fact, six small farms which he has merged—although he leases it to a farming corporation, and gets a great kick out of being around to do odd jobs himself.

Justice Van Devanter also is spending the summer on a farm, that of his son in nearby Maryland. Justice Butler is at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., a mountain resort only two hours drive from Washington, where the Japanese Ambassador and various diplomats usually spend their summers. Butler is an inveterate golfer.

into that conflict is something which a great many of us would like to forget, but at least it had this rather mournful benefit: We will not go to bat for other nations in a vast hurry again.

Europe's military cliques having quieted down, Japan takes another poke at China. If this were not done, some simple-minded person might resume thinking that war as an instrument of national policy has been outlawed.

CHAPTER 33

THERE MUST be something that Joan Spencer could do about it if Julian really had fallen in love with Sheila too late. Joan Spencer had a lot of wild ideas at that moment as she left Sheila and Julian alone in Julian's library.

If it were really true, as Donald said, that any man would be blind not to fall in love with her—Joan—she might set out to be her most alluring self to be Pierre Durand's next big attraction. That, of course, was the wildest idea. How could a girl like Joan—plain girl that she considered herself—hope to be a rival to the glamorous Sheila? Joan was all too ready to "thdraw from any field in which she found herself with the famous actress.

But there was Sheila herself. Joan had believed that Sheila wanted to be friends with her. Why couldn't she go to Sheila and tell her that Julian loved her? But Sheila must have known that all these years and had she wanted Julian, she could have had him long ago.

Perhaps Julian had never spoken of his love, although his every gesture was eloquent of it. Perhaps if Joan were to talk to her and plead for him, Sheila would see it differently. Joan wondered if Julian had even talked to Sheila of cool forests and mountain streams.

She called herself a fool for thinking that she might open blind eyes to such beauty, that she might so inartificially present a thing that Julian himself had not been able to do.

That Sheila was not worthy of all that Julian had to offer, she did not doubt, but if Julian wanted her, if he were to go through life alone because of her, Joan wanted him to have her.

Sheila was at the height of her glory and fame today but an actress' years were limited and when they were over what thing other than love could fill the enlarged circle of her life?

Even if she did not love Julian as he loved her, she would have even protection of his love, the life-long adulation he would always give her. She would never have to know the emptiness of the anti-climatic years when the theater was not for her. In Julian's eyes she would always have glamor.

Joan, thinking these things, was close to something that was nearly the truth. That was Sheila's need of Julian.

Her meditation came to an abrupt end. "Whew! I think I need a scotch and soda." It was Julian.

"Housekeeper, secretary, barmaid.

We aim to please," Joan announced, pouring a drink for Julian.

"Thank the gods that you aren't a temperamental woman," he said accepting it gratefully. "Joan, you have no idea how completely satisfactory you are. You are the balance wheel I've needed all my life."

How happy he looked. Perhaps Sheila and he had just been staging the big reconciliation scene.

"For 15 years I've been drying Sheila's tears and still I can't seem to learn that the next time is never any different. Poor child, she takes everything much too hard."

Joan had her doubts about Sheila's being a "poor child" but she kept them to herself.

"I'm relieved to hear there wasn't something serious the matter." That seemed safe enough to say. "It was serious enough. I had wanted Georgia Carlay to play Helena. Fortunately, she has been undecided about it. That gives me an out. Sheila wants to play the role. And Sheila is quite right about it. We began together you know."

Joan nodded; Betty Goodsell had told her that Sheila's first success had been in Julian's first successful play.

"Strange thing about that, Sheila and I have always brought each other luck. She has always been a fine actress but she never had the right play until my first success. And I had had no successes before because there had never been an actress to do the woman I had in mind."

It was because he loved her, Joan's voice within her told her.

"Has she always appeared in your plays?" she asked aloud.

"Oh, no. Sheila has been doing comedy for many years and I'm getting too old to write that sort of thing. Now, I think this is going to be the biggest thing I've ever done. When it is over, I shall settle down to writing books and leave this as my last play."

"No!" Joan said to him at once. "You can't stop. You're just beginning. You're young. You have a lifetime of work and..."

"Young?" Joan thought he was silly to seem so delighted at the thought. He looked positively boyish.

"Of course you are," she said matter-of-factly. "And so Miss True is going to play Helena."

"You're right, she has calmed down and gotten over being heart-broken, furious, wounded and brave. Why she has to do that to me, I never will understand."

Joan thought she could.

"That's temperament and I guess one could forgive her for anything after seeing her in the theater. I think she'll make a wonderful Helena."

"If she had something you've got, Joan, she'd be perfect." Julian didn't tell her what she had but Joan glowed within. She was embarrassed and picked up her papers without saying anything in answer.

Joan had always done that. Changing the subject, slipping away at crucial moments, evading answers, dropping a curtain before the issues of the moment, lacking courage to face them and see them through had swerved her destiny and would do it again, but Joan didn't know that.

It wasn't that Joan lacked honesty or the courage to face things by herself; it was that she feared to assume things that she thought were born of her own imagination and not of circumstance. She didn't realize the reaction it provoked in others.

Extreme reserve is oftentimes as unfortunate as extreme impulsiveness.

Sheila burst in on Joan a few days later with:

"Joan, dear, you're much closer to all this than I am. I've read the play but I wish you'd tell me more about it. You've been working on it and I'm sure it must be quite real to you. Now, did you feel that Helena..."

Sheila could certainly be charming. This was not the imperious girl who had insulted Joan at The Willows. This was Sheila at her best, anxious, it was true, to glean everything she could from Joan for the betterment of her performance. Joan was surprised to find Sheila listening with respect to all that she had to tell her, surprised to find Sheila asking with real humility if Joan thought she had the right interpretation.

One night she telephoned and asked Joan to dine with her at her apartment. Joan accepted.

Sheila's apartment was exactly like Sheila. It was all in bright white and cool greens. There was much modern glass, white rugs, low chairs, dazzling lights. It was enchanting but wearing.

Joan said she liked it. Sheila said she thought it was "chic" and suited her.

"Will you live in New York when you are married?" Sheila shot at her out of a clear sky.

"I don't know that I'm going to be married," Joan said with a speck of acid for a period. How did Sheila happen to say—and know—that?

"Really?" Sheila looked up from her salad. "How odd! Julian said something about your getting married as soon as the play is on."

So Julian didn't anticipate her services after the play was on! (TO BE CONTINUED)

The Birthday OF THE NATION

July 4, 1776

We celebrate the 160th anniversary of the birth of our Nation. "Government of the people, by the people, and for the people," is not perfect. Men and women are not perfect. It is true, that in a Republic founded upon the principle of human equality, there are still grave inequalities to be overcome, great injustices to be corrected. But we Americans enjoy more freedom, more comforts and luxuries than are granted to any other people.

May this 160th birthday be an inspiration to new unity and devotion in working out our common problems.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Just as predicted the groups Congressman William Lemke was counting on to combine in support of his Union party presidential candidacy are failing to get together.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend already expresses doubts of his old age pensioners' liking for the Lemke movement. At first the doctor seemed rather friendly toward it. Now, however, he says that the old age pensioners won't make up their minds before their meeting in Cleveland, July 15-19. He suggests that they may prefer to name their own candidate, ignoring Lemke.

The trouble with these third party folk is that they don't agree among themselves. Instead of forming a third party, when it comes to a showdown their idea is to form several different and conflicting independent parties, thus offsetting one another.

DIFFERENCES

Perhaps, as Dr. Townsend forecasts, the old age pensioners will pick their own candidate. Perhaps not. Either way, it's clear from the doctor's comment that they're not wildly enthusiastic for Lemke. Lemke makes his appeal especially to agriculture, by a method involving monetary inflation. On that basis one might suppose he could command the backing, for example, of Senator Elmer Thomas. Thomas is from Oklahoma, as agricultural a state as Lemke's North Dakota. He also is an inflationist. Nevertheless no Thomasonian cheers are heard for Lemke. Why? Why, Thomas knows that Lemke doesn't stand a Chinaman's chance. It pays him better to stay at least nominally Democratic.

Labor shows no signs of getting on board the Lemke hearse. It sizzles with third party sentiment, but not for Lemke's kind of a third party.

LONG FOLLOWERS

The Rev. Gerald I. K. Smith, who has assumed that he is the late Senator Huey P. Long's successor, appears mildly Lemke-ish but the machine Huey Long organized manifests a disposition to toss the Rev. Gerald I. K. overboard as its leader not caring to tie itself up with a losing venture. Neither the Wisconsin Progressive nor the Minnesota Farmer-Laborites gravitate Lemke-ward. Father Charles E. Coughlin and

Senator Lynn J. Frazier are the only outstanding Lemke-ites. As for Senator Frazier, he was co-author, with Representative Lemke in basing his campaign. In such circumstances he hardly can be otherwise than pro-Lemke. Parenthetically it's noteworthy that Frazier's North Dakota colleague, Senator Gerald P. Nye, is noncommittal.

LEMKES HOPE

Congressman Lemke surmises that with his Union party in the field, no candidate will win an electoral majority-over-all and, consequently, that the presidential decision will be thrown into the house of representatives.

It's the height of an improbability.

The same prediction was made in 1924, when the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, a far stronger candidate than a Congressman Lemke is at present, was a third party aspirant, and the senator carried only his own state of Wisconsin. A similar prediction was made when Theodore Roosevelt ran as a Bull Moose, and he couldn't do it.

CINCINNATI, July 1.—(UP)—Fourth place and with baseball team at a higher pitch than in the last 10 years, the Cincinnati Reds were today when they met the Chicago Cubs.

Although idle yesterday, the Reds went into the first division in the Boston Bees turned to the New York Giants. The Reds are now but one-half a game behind the third place Pittsburgh team.

At Hollingsworth, star young outfielder, was scheduled to pitch the Reds today. It was expected that Manager Charley Grimm would nominate Tex Carleton as his pitcher. Carleton shut out the Reds in his last appearance against the Cubs.

While the Reds were idle yesterday, President Powell Crosby announced he had exercised an option for the purchase of the controlling stock of the club, formerly held by a Cincinnati bank.

Following the purchase, it was reported, 3,200 shares of stock. Following the purchase he said no changes would be made in the club's board of direction.

About This And That In Many Sports

Fishermen in Action

Scores of Circleville fishermen were reposing along the banks of the old Ohio canal Wednesday morning, the first day fishing was allowed in the "closed" area. Last night's rain failed to hinder any of the sportsmen, some of whom were reported out at midnight trying their luck. Fish are thick in the canal, but whether they are biting is another thing. Clarence Francis, game protector, was checking licenses today. Little Walnut and Deer Creek, one mile each way from the Route 23 and Route 22 bridges, were opened, too, today.

Use Plenty of Gas

Here's some early news from the Indianapolis Speedway—There will be no limit to the amount of fuel used by cars competing in the 500-mile race next year, but all the gasoline must come from the same pump that serves the motoring public. The rules committee of the American Automobile association, the governing body of automobile racing, decided the new rule in its annual meeting.

Deshong Deserving

Jimmy DeShong, cast to play the role of the all-star team, should have been named on the all-star team representing his league. DeShong is going great guns for the Senators, and has been largely responsible for the fine showing they have made to date.

Buck Coaches Spread

The Ohio State university coaching staff has scattered the four corners of the globe for the summer. Director L. W. St. John is in California; Coach Hal Olsen is at Rice Lake, Wis., conducting a boys' camp; Baseball Coach Floyd Stahl is at Camp Martin Johnson in Irons, Mich.; Swimming Coach Mike Peppe has started on a tour of Europe by motorcycle, and Grid Coach Francis is conducting a school of "gridironology" in Columbus. Later he goes to Osego, Mich. for a vacation.

RED BIRDS PLAN LARGE PROGRAM FOR BALL FANS

COLUMBUS, July 1.—The July 4th program at the Red Bird stadium, which has come to be one of the features of the season during recent years, was announced by Red Bird President Donald E. Bench today. Two ball games, concerts by three bands, a military display and a "night-cap" of fireworks is to be on the menu.

Toledo will furnish the opposition on the diamond as it did last year and central Ohio fans can be certain that the Birds will be out to revenge their three game defeat at Toledo a week ago. The first game is scheduled to start at 4 o'clock and music during this twilight affair will be furnished by the Knot Hole Gang Band. Following the first game there will be a short intermission. At 7 o'clock, a Battalion Review is to be presented by Fort Hayes troops. The Fort Hayes Band will be on hand to supply the marching tunes for this military display. The second game against Toledo is to start promptly at 8:30 followed by an elaborate display of fireworks.

As in the past, both games are listed at double-header prices with one ticket covering the entire evening and night entertainment.

SAINTS REDUCE BREWERS' LEAD OVER A. A. LOOP

BY UNITED PRESS
The busy St. Paul Saints with two four run spurges beat the league leading Milwaukee Brewers last night, lengthening to four games a winning streak started at the expense of Kansas City.

The second place Saints won from the Brewers 9 to 5 by making four runs in the ninth to break a 5 to 5 tie. In the sixth, McWilliams slammed a home run with the bases filled.

Columbus batsmen cracked 15 hits off two Louisville pitchers and the Red Birds downed the Colonels 8 to 4. The Birds won in the last three innings, driving in four scores in the eighth. Macon was the winning pitcher.

Toledo's 9 to 1 victory over Indianapolis stretched a winning list to six straight. Last night's game was topped by the Mud Hens 5-run drive in the eighth inning. Flowers pitched 7-hit baseball for the victors.

The Kansas City Blues, outbid by Minneapolis, won from the Millers by the bare margin of one run. The Millers failed to score until the seventh inning, when they tallied all their runs to finish on the short end of a 3 to 4 score.

Games today: Minneapolis at Kansas City; St. Paul at Milwaukee; Indianapolis at Toledo; Columbus at Louisville.

YESTERDAY HERO: Pepper Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals, whose timely hitting won two ball games and hoisted the club into sole possession of the National league lead.

In a survey of 2,500 savings bank accounts in New York City, it was found that only 14 accounts held more than $7,000.

Pepper Martin, Angered, Goes to Work

NEW YORK, July 1.—(UP)—Barrel-chested John Leonard (Pepper) Martin, discarded from the National league all-star team for the first time since the annual extravaganza began four years ago, turned back the pages of baseball history to 1931 to remind a fickle public today that he still is the slugging, sliding "Wild Horse of the Osage."

Pepper didn't actually say "now look here, what do you mean leaving me off the National league all-stars — why I won a world series almost single-handed back there for the Cardinals in '31." His answer was a dramatic exhibition that Pepper Martin is one of the greatest "money players" of all time.

Chips Were Down
The fun-loving, harmonica-playing Pepper, just as keen, fast and tough as ever, combined his wits and drawn yesterday to win a couple of ball games for the Cards. They were important games, too. The chips were down and John L. came through. The double-barreled win over the Pittsburgh Pirates broke the Cards' first-place tie with the Chicago Cubs and gave them a full margin of leadership.

The fact that Pepper was not the choice of the fans in a nationwide ballot to determine personnel of the all-star aggregations, nor was named by Charley Grimm in his five personal selections, probably doesn't mean a hoot to him. He would rather spend his

YACHT RACE POSTPONED TO PROVIDE REPAIRS

HAMILTON, Bermuda, July 1.—(UP)—The final leg of the International yacht race from Hamilton to Cuxhaven, Germany, was postponed today until Saturday noon to allow 11 prospective starters time to repair damage suffered in the storm swept Atlantic on the first leg of the trip, from Newport, R. I., to Hamilton.

Every water front worker and shipwright in Hamilton was laboring feverishly night and day overhauling sails, rigging and gear, and calking leaky seams.

Meantime the 70 members of the amateur crews were doing what they could to help—between the social affairs being given here in their honor.

The 625-mile first leg of the race was won by Robert Baruch's cutter Kirawan.

GIVEN OILS FALL BEFORE ATTACK OF CIRCLEVILLES

The Circleville Oils remained in the chase for the first half title in the soft ball league by defeating the Given Oils Tuesday evening by a 6 to 2 score.

Because of darkness the game was called at the end of the seventh frame.

Bill Heggie tossed for the Circleville Oils and Bob Jones for the Givens.

Tonight finds the Givens, slowly returning to form, meeting the league-leading Eagles. The big game of the week comes Friday evening when the Circleville Oils and Eagles tangle, the winner being the first half titlist.

CAVALCADE AND DISCOVERY MEET IN CHICAGO RACE

CHICAGO, July 1.—(UP)—The answer to "whose turn is it—Discovery's or Cavalcade's?" will come out of the $10,000 Stars and Stripes handicap Saturday if these blooded champions stay in the running for Arlington Park's July Fourth feature.

They drew top weights in a field of 42 star nominees including Azucar, Whopper, Hollywood, Nellie Flay, Chanceview, Myrtlewood, Whereaway and Roman Soldier.

At the height of their bitter three-year-old season, Discovery chased Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's big horse across so many finish lines he was dubbed "Cavalcade's shadow." But the next year, Discovery became the wonder horse of the season while the luckless Cavalcade wallowed in his wake.

The Stars and Stripes, second stake race staged at Chicago's swanky north side plant this year, may be the opening engagement of their third tense racing year.

Here's how easy it is:

1. Decide what you want to say in your ad. Then write it, leaving out unnecessary words.

2. CALL 782 if you have a phone or drop by the service desk, Herald office. Read your ad to the ad-taker. She will help you with it, perhaps shorten it, and then will read it back to you for O. K.

3. That's all... except to sit back and wait for results which won't be long in coming because nearly everybody reads the Herald Classified Ads.

REDS IN FIRST DIVISION; CLUB NOW CROSLLEY'S

Hollingsworth to Be Fired at Cubs Today By Manager Dressen

CINCINNATI, July 1.—(UP)—In fourth place and with baseball enthusiasm at a higher pitch than any time in the last 10 years, the hustling Cincinnati Reds were to seek their eighth straight victory here today when they met the Chicago Cubs.

Although idle yesterday, the Reds went into the first division when the Boston Bees turned back the New York Giants. The Reds are now but one-half a contest behind the third place Pittsburgh team.

Al Hollingsworth, star young southpaw, was scheduled to pitch for the Reds today. It was expected Manager Charley Grimm would nominate Tex Carleton as his hurler. Carleton shut out the Reds in his last appearance against them.

While the Reds were idle yesterday, President Powell Crosley announced he had exercised an option for the purchase of the controlling stock of the club, formerly held by a Cincinnati bank. Crosley's option, it was reported, covered 3,200 shares of stock. Following the purchase he said no changes would be made in the club's board of directors.

The American Indian's main contribution to modern civilization is the cultivation of many valuable plants.

About This And That In Many Sports

Fishermen in Action

Scores of Circleville fishermen were reposing along the banks of the old Ohio canal Wednesday morning, the first day fishing was allowed in the "closed" area—Last night's rain failed to hinder any of the sportsmen, some of whom were reported out at midnight trying their luck—Fish are thick in the canal, but whether they are biting is another thing—Clarence Francis, game protector, was checking licenses today. Little Walnut and Deer Creek, one mile each way from the Route 23 and Route 22 bridges, were opened, too, today.

Use Plenty of Gas

Here's some early news from the Indianapolis Speedway—There will be no limit to the amount of fuel used by cars competing in the 500-mile race next year, but all the gasoline must come from the same pump that serves the motoring public—The rules committee of the American Automobile association, the governing body of automobile racing, decided the new rule in its annual meeting.

Deshong Deserving

Jimmy Deshong, cast to Yankee Doodle, should have been named on the all-star team representing his league—Deshong is going great guns for the Senators, and has been largely responsible for the fine showing they have made to date.

Buck Coaches Spread

The Ohio State university coaching staff has scattered the four corners of the globe for the summer—Director L. W. St. John is in California; Cage Coach Hal Olsen is at Rice Lake, Wis., conducting a boys' camp; Baseball Coach Floyd Stahl is at Camp Martin Johnson in Irons, Mich.; Swimming Coach Mike Peppe has started on a tour of Europe by motorcycle, and Grid Coach Francis is conducting a school of "gridironology" in Columbus—Later he goes to Otsego, Mich. for a vacation.

Some Guesseed Wrong

A fight note * * * A Cleveland haberdashery conducted a contest on the recent Schmeling-Louis bout—Eighteen out of 32,000 contestants picked Schmeling to win in the "dozen" round.

COUPLE WED THIRD TIME

COLDWATER, Mich. (UP)—Undismayed by the failure of their first two marriages to each other, Mr. and Mrs. John Vogas came to a justice of the peace for their third wedding.

RED BIRDS PLAN LARGE PROGRAM FOR BALL FANS

COLUMBUS, July 1.—The July 4th program at the Red Bird stadium, which has come to be one of the features of the season during recent years, was announced by Red Bird President Donald E. Beach today. Two ball games, concerts by three bands, a military display and a "night-cap" of fireworks is to be on the menu.

Toledo will furnish the opposition on the diamond as it did last year and central Ohio fans can be certain that the Birds will be out to revenge their three game defeat at Toledo a week ago. The first game is scheduled to start at 4 o'clock and music during this twilight affair will be furnished by the Knot Hole Gang Band. Following the first game there will be a short intermission. At 7 o'clock, a Battalion Review is to be presented by Fort Hayes troops. The Fort Hayes Band will be on hand to supply the marching tunes for this military display. The second game against Toledo is to start promptly at 8:30 followed by an elaborate display of fireworks.

As in the past, both games are listed at double-header prices with one ticket covering the entire evening and night entertainment.

SAINTS REDUCE BREWERS' LEAD OVER A. A. LOOP

BY UNITED PRESS
The busy St. Paul Saints with two four run spurges beat the league leading Milwaukee Brewers last night, lengthening to four games a winning streak started at the expense of Kansas City.

The second place Saints won from the Brewers 9 to 5 by making four runs in the ninth to break a 5 to 5 tie. In the sixth, McWilliams slammed a home run with the bases filled.

Columbus batsmen cracked 15 hits off two Louisville pitchers and the Red Birds downed the Colonels 8 to 4. The Birds won in the last three innings, driving in four scores in the eighth. Macon was the winning pitcher.

Toledo's 9 to 1 victory over Indianapolis stretched a winning list to six straight. Last night's game was topped by the Mud Hens 5-run drive in the eighth inning. Flowers pitched 7-hit baseball for the victors.

The Kansas City Blues, outfit by Minneapolis, won from the Millers by the bare margin of one run. The Millers failed to score until the seventh inning, when they tallied all their runs to finish on the short end of a 3 to 4 score.

Games today: Minneapolis at Kansas City; St. Paul at Milwaukee; Indianapolis at Toledo; Columbus at Louisville.

YESTERDAY HERO: Pepper Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals, whose timely hitting won two ball games and hoisted the club into sole possession of the National league lead.

In a survey of 2,500 savings bank accounts in New York City, it was found that only 14 accounts held more than $7,000.

Fairfield Post

Paul Potts, 37, superintendent of the Laurelville schools for the past 16 years, has been elected in the same capacity in Amanda. The board of education chose Potts from a field of 35. He will succeed R. S. Wickerham, who resigned recently to become superintendent at Worthington, Franklin county. The new Amanda educator will succeed the remainder of the board at the next board meeting. Potts has been active in Laurelville civic affairs, in addition to his school work. The community has a good school man, but the loss is Amanda's gain. The Laurelville board will choose his successor in the near future.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

The love of money is the root of all evil.—I Timothy 6:10.

Ernest Augustus, safety director for the Mead Corporation, Chillicothe, has been appointed to the same position in the cabinet of Mayor James E. Ford of that city. Augustus will succeed O. B. Atwell, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Neuding, who resigned effective July 1.

Dr. G. S. Hunter of Ironton is the new vice commander of the American Legion in the seventh district, which includes Circleville.

Dr. F. F. Chauncey, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Columbus, and a visitor to Circleville at frequent intervals, will leave Columbus during July to become rector of the American Protestant Episcopal church in Florence Italy. Dr. Chauncey is a close friend of Rev. L. C. Sherburne, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Eight Circleville members of the Odd Fellows lodge attended a district meeting in London Tuesday night. The second and third degrees were exemplified. Those attending the meeting were H. E. Eltz, Frank Turner, Orin Dreisbach, John Zeimer, Loring Hoffman, E. W. Weiler, John Hummel and James McLaughlin.

ness men. He explained the majority of Circleville's mail is received through the Columbus office. This mail is sent to Washington C. H., over the B. & O. lines then brought to Circleville by bus. "This bus stops along the road to deliver to rural people while you merchants wait," he said.

Under the present system merchants do not receive all their mail when they open their establishments in the morning. The large grain companies, canning factories and manufacturing concerns have made numerous complaints about the present system.

Petition Recommended

Mr. Hays recommended the Chamber of Commerce send a petition to the postoffice department suggesting the use of the Scioto Valley bus line. The use of this line, he explained, would speed up local service.

The merchants attending the meeting went on record that all stores close on the Fourth of July. Indications were that some groceries might stay open to take care of emergency calls from farmers, now in the midst of the harvest season.

Chamber of Commerce members will go to Stoutsville July 7 to attend a chicken supper at the Lutheran church. Later the organization will attend suppers in other nearby communities.

plied by 14 chorines. They said he was at work during the hours coroners' physicians said she was slain.

Seven year old Jimmy Thompson, son of her first marriage, said he witnessed the murder. He watched a man smash a brick on his mother's head, but went to sleep when assured that "everything will be all right." Hours later, he arose, dressed, and told the night clerk in the cheap hotel where his mother lived, that she had been slain.

The boy is sharp, blunt, and given to imagining. He has seen too many moving pictures, police suggested. His tales must be sifted constantly to eliminate figments of his day-dreaming. It was even possible, said Police Captain William O'Brien, that he killed his mother himself.

To Face Questioning

But if he did witness the slaying, as he said, he may eventually lead officers to the slayer.

O'Brien announced Jimmy would be questioned today by Dr. Harry Hoffman, county behaviorist. Any child who could be soothed to sleep while observing his mother's slaying, and then talk about it later in matter-of-fact tones deserves investigation, O'Brien declared.

and four ambulances arrived from nearby cities.

As the bus was righted it developed that it finally had been stopped when it crashed up against a huge signpost advertising the wonders of Natural Bridge. If it hadn't been for the signpost it is likely the bus would have rolled 14 feet farther and plunged its entire cargo to death.

Of the 33 persons brought together from many states in their common purpose—transportation five are dead. Two of these were women, one believed to be Mrs. Lucy Thompson of Alexandria, Va. The other was unidentified. Older son, the driver, was one of the men killed. Another was tentatively identified as J. P. Hamilton of Birmingham. A fifth was unidentified.

Four of the passengers, including Hamilton and Carter, were bus drivers themselves, en route from Birmingham to Philadelphia to drive back new buses.

He said he was unfamiliar with the political issues in Ohio. "I don't know much about what's going on in Ohio but I bet

He said Governor Landon would speak in Ohio during the campaign but that he was unable to say when or where.

The Republican state convention was to open at 3 p. m. James Garfield Stewart, city councilman of Cincinnati, was to make the keynote speech after State Chairman Ed D. Schorr calls the convention to order.

District delegations will caucus after the afternoon session to select members of various committees. The platform committee probably will meet after the night session of the convention. The results of their work will be presented to the delegates Thursday.

PAUL POTTS, LAURELVILLE, HEADS AMANDA SCHOOLS

BOARD SELECTS MAN WITH MANY YEARS' SERVICE

E. S. Wickerham Takes Job in Worthington; 35 After Fairfield Post

Paul Potts, 37, superintendent of the Laurelville schools for the last 15 years, has been elected in the same capacity in Amanda. The village board of education chose Potts from a field of 35.

He will succeed R. S. Wickerham, who resigned recently to become superintendent at Worthington, Franklin county.

The new Amanda educator will recommend the remainder of the faculty at the next board meeting.

Potts has been active in Laurelville civic affairs, in addition to his school work. The community loses a good school man, but the Laurelville loss is Amanda's gain.

When the Laurelville board will meet to choose his successor is not known.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT
The love of money is the root of all evil.—(1 Timothy 6:10).

Ernest Augustus, safety director for the Mead Corporation, Chillicothe, has been appointed to the same position in the cabinet of Mayor James E. Ford of that city. Augustus will succeed O. B. Atwell, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Neuding, who resigned effective July 1.

Dr. G. S. Hunter of Ironton is the new vice commander of the American Legion in the seventh district, which includes Circleville.

Dr. E. F. Chauncey, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Columbus, and a visitor to Circleville at frequent intervals, will leave Columbus during July to become rector of the American Protestant Episcopal church in Florence Italy.

Dr. Chauncey is a close friend of Rev. L. C. Sherburne, pastor of St. Philip's Episcopal church.

Eight Circleville members of the Odd Fellows lodge attended a district meeting in London Tuesday night. The second and third degrees were exemplified. Those attending the meeting were H. E. Ebtz, Frank Turner, Orin Dreisbach, John Zeimer, Loring Hoffman, E. W. Weiler, John Hummel and James McLaughlin.

ness men. He explained the majority of Circleville's mail is received through the Columbus office. This mail is sent to Washington C. H., over the B. & O. lines then brought to Circleville by bus. "This bus stops along the road to deliver to rural people while you merchants wait," he said.

Under the present system merchants do not receive all their mail when they open their establishments in the morning. The large grain companies, canning factories and manufacturing concerns have made numerous complaints about the present system.

Petition Recommended

Mr. Hays recommended the Chamber of Commerce send a petition to the postoffice department suggesting the use of the Scioto Valley bus line. The use of this line, he explained, would speed up local service.

The merchants attending the meeting went on record that all stores close on the Fourth of July. Indications were that some groceries might stay open to take care of emergency calls from farmers, now in the midst of the harvest season.

Chamber of Commerce members will go to Stoutsville July 7 to attend a chicken supper at the Lutheran church. Later the organization will attend suppers in other nearby communities.

Police Believe Boy May Solve Mother's Murder

plied by 14 chorines. They said he was at work during the hours coroner's physicians said she was slain.

Seven year old Jimmy Thompson, son of her first marriage, said he witnessed the murder. He watched a man smash a brick on his mother's head, but went to sleep when assured that "everything will be all right." Hours later, he arose, dressed, and told the night clerk in the cheap hotel where his mother lived, that she had been slain.

The boy is sharp, blasé, and given to imagining. He has seen too many moving pictures, police suggested. His tales must be sifted constantly to eliminate figments of his day-dreaming. It was even possible, said Police Captain William O'Brien, that he killed his mother himself.

To Face Questioning

But if he did witness the slaying, as he said, he may eventually lead officers to the slayer.

O'Brien announced Jimmy would be questioned today by Dr. Harry Hoffman, county behaviorist. Any child who could be soothed to sleep while observing his mother's slaying, and then talk about it later in matter-of-fact tones deserves investigation, O'Brien declared.

and four ambulances arrived from nearby cities.

As the bus was righted it developed that it finally had been stopped when it crashed up against a huge signpost advertising the wonders of Natural Bridge. If it hadn't been for the signpost it is likely the bus would have rolled 14 feet farther and plunged its entire cargo to death.

Of the 33 persons brought together from many states in their common purpose—transportation—five are dead. Two of these were women, one believed to be Mrs. Lucy Thompson of Alexandria, Va. The other was unidentified. Older son, the driver, was one of the men killed. Another was tentatively identified as J. P. Hamilton of Birmingham. A fifth was unidentified.

Four of the passengers, including Hamilton and Carter, were bus drivers themselves, en route from Birmingham to Philadelphia to drive back new buses.

recent statement to the effect that Landon will carry "all but six" states in the election.

He said he was unfamiliar with the political issues in Ohio.

"I don't know much about what's going on in Ohio but I bet the Republicans are right," he said. He said Governor Landon would speak in Ohio during the campaign but that he was unable to say when or where.

The Republican state convention was to open at 3 p. m. James Garfield Stewart, city councilman of Cincinnati, was to make the keynote speech after State Chairman Ed D. Schorr calls the convention to order.

District delegations will caucus after the afternoon session to select members of various committees. The platform committee probably will meet after the night session of the convention. The results of their work will be presented to the delegates Thursday.
